RE: Proposed Labor Dept Rule abolishing options in IRAs / Retirement Plans

I received an email from the Options Industry Council saying that there is this proposal under consideration which could eliminate use of options in self-directed retirement accounts. As a holder of a retirement account, in which I personally choose my stock and options transactions, I oppose any such restriction to option use. I do not consider the government's attempt to "protect" me anything but a restriction of my freedom. I have found options to be of value in producing income from my retirement account and a necessary aspect to my financial security.
